

Does Remote Light plan to become a publicly traded company?

The management of Remote Light will do whatever is in the best interests of the shareholders. The management team is always looking for ways to increase the value of the company. At the current time, the management team has not engaged legal counsel to move the company into the public markets, but all options are currently being explored to create additional shareholder value.